Are you ready to write? It's almost time for that race-against-the-clock, heart-pounding rollercoaster of creativity that is National Novel Writing Month! In just two weeks, writers everywhere will begin penning the tales that will sweep them away for the rest of November. Make sure you announce your novel before November begins by visiting the Library's web site, so you can get writing on Day 1. Even if your inspiration is infinite, you still need to start somewhere. See Mr. Kilburn or the Library's web site if you have questions.

Make your plans Highland High School, because next week is Teen Tech Week, part of our month-long Teentober event highlighting what the Library has to offer. Students are invited to stop by during lunch to design your very own school appropriate button using our button maker! Next week, Get Connected @ Your Library.
